

Perceptions of Ethical Problems with Scientific Journal Peer Review: An Exploratory Study

An article in the journal Science and Engineering Ethics reports the results of an anonymous survey of researchers at a government research institution concerning their perceptions about ethical problems with journal peer review. Incompetent review was the most common ethical problem reported by the respondents; bias was the next most common problem.

<http://www.springerlink.com/content/k64q63125r0655ql/?p=56b05c37c3dc4a76bc37e922a9fdceb&pi=2>